

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

THE CITY FINANCES.

The Revenues of Philadelphia, Outside of Taxation.

The following table, which is from the annual report of the City Controller, and additional figures published by us yesterday, gives the revenues of the city of Philadelphia from sources other than taxation during the years 1883 and 1898—

Table with columns for Year, Total, and various revenue categories like City Railroad, Water and Sewerage, etc.

In addition to the above estimated receipts for the year 1899, there was a cash balance on hand November 1, 1898, amounting to $674,147.78.

According to the tables published by us yesterday, a full tax rate of $2.00 will be necessary to raise the $8,622,726.77 required in addition to the regular revenues of the city.

The Annual Expenditures and Tax-Rate Since Consolidation. The following table embraces the annual expenditures of the city departments and the fluctuations in the tax-rate since 1854, the year of consolidation—

Table with columns for Year, Annual Expenditures, Annual Tax-Rate, and Annual Per Capita Expenditures.

As two months' expenditures for 1898 are not included in the above statement, the figures for that year are not complete.

THANKSGIVING DAY.—By official appointment to-morrow will be celebrated as a National Thanksgiving Day, on which the people throughout the country are requested to abstain from their usual labors, and to devote themselves to returning thanks to the "Giver of all good gifts" for past and present prosperity and peace.

FOURTH EDITION FROM THE CAPITAL. FIFTH EDITION EUROPE.

Secretary McCulloch and Collector Coker. The following are detached from the Franklin and ordered to the Michigan: Surgeon Charles J. Tunell and J. C. Spear; Chaplain J. S. Wallace; Passed Assistant Surgeon D. B. Bauman; Lieutenant Commander J. V. McNeil.

President Johnson is entirely dissatisfied, while Seward insists that Beverly is carrying out his instructions to the letter. There is a rumor to-day that the President has determined to recall Beverly. But this, probably, grows out of the difficulty known to have occurred in the Cabinet yesterday.

The Removal of Collector Coker, is denied not only by Cameron himself, who makes no secret of his opposition to Coker, but also by Secretary McCulloch, and two or three officers of the Treasury Department. The correspondent who sent the despatch did not see Cameron, and did not discover his business here until the next day after his arrival.

Admiral Farragut, who arrived here last night, paid his respects to the President and the Secretary of the Navy to-day, and also to General Grant. PHILADELPHIA STOCK EXCHANGE SALES, NOV. 25.
